

produced by DJ Jazzy Jeff

written by Jeff Baraka

This feeling is as real as can be, take it from me, a Bronzeville, silver-tongue, "Golden-Era" MC. Olympic medalist with this artform, got me to this platform, fist up, pencil gripped up in my rap at all times... Cause they ain't writin' no more, so I be solo at the office and art supply stores.
[The Eberhard writer, I'm in where they never been] "I get a pen, a pencil, a marker" -paper for my sabre, I'm rougher than Lord Vader and nicer than Fred's neighbors in a stick-up. Hard to term like an El Camino —it's a car, it's a pickup? So what's this, too poetic to be rap? Nah baby, this the new boom-bap up out the speakers, I walk it like I talk it, my Sharpies match my sneakers I -vibrate with that feeling we get, and by any other name, I would still be fresh, but call me—

{Jeff! I told you, my name is Jeff...} Yeah, it's that feeling...
And by any other name, I would still be fresh, but call me—
{Jeff! I told you, my name is Jeff...} Yeah, it's that feeling...
{Y'all don't know the depth of the rap that's spoken here...}

By any other name, I would still be fresh, a prince to a king to a god in the flesh. Feelin' lucky like Ganesh in a casino, no Joe Pesc-gambino, but bet money homey we know the pen is murderous... also birthin' us... so immaculate, Return of the Mack I get back to my work with my brow all sweaty, cause we Hotter Than July when It's June Already. This westside Philly, southside Chi-Illy, we worldwide really... #INTLPLAYER. It's the natural way a DJ and rap sayer deliver the "Woooooo!" —like Jeffrey Osborne or RZA. Who is a better feel for the get down? If they ain't the real deal, sit down. Still Consummate O Type Star sh*t now... spot lit now... my same name big homey bout to rip now—

{Jeff! I told you, my name is Jeff...} Yeah, it's that feeling...
And by any other name, we would still be fresh, but call us—
{Jeff! I told you, my name is Jeff...} Yeah, it's that feeling...
{Huh, what? Huh huh, what what?}

{Jeff! I told you, my name is Jeff...} Yeah, it's that feeling...
I've had many other names, and was always fresh, but call me—
{Jeff! I told you, my name is Jeff...} Yeah... it's that feeling...
{And if you don't know, now you know...}